

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 22.
From a gentleman who left Richmond on the 20th, we have the following information: He says the Richmond papers of the 29th to 30th, and the 1st and 2d, report has been received from General Lee.

The Major-General Halleck:

I have the honor to report that I enclose with my command. At Salem, three depots were destroyed, containing 2,000 barrels of flour, 10,000 barrels of wheat, 10,000 bushels of corn, 10,000 bushels of oats, 10,000 barrels of meat, several cords of leather, 1,000 sacks of salt, 30 boxes of clothing, 20 boxes of cotton, a large amount of harness, shoes, sabers, carbines, oil, tar, and other articles, and 100 wagons and 100 teams.

The captures, except one division, under Gen. Early.

Some uneasiness and excitement existed in the vicinity of Stanton, Va., as consequence of the arrival of General Lee's army. The command, Imboden and Rhodes were endeavoring to oppose Averell's further advance, and a fight is expected in that quarter.

In the rebel Congress, the subtreasury bill has been introduced, and all persons who have put themselves in the army are compelled to go themselves.

Henry Foote still continues his severe denunciations.

It is rumored that a commission will be sent to the Court of Madrid in behalf of the rebel Government.

WASHERSTON, Dec. 22.

The bill which has passed both houses of Congress to supply the deficiency appropriates $20,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of bounties and advances, and for the payment of expenses such as are not provided for by law, shall be paid to any persons enlisted after the 5th of January next; that the money so paid by drafted persons shall be paid, when a strong effort was made to take the first bridge, in which they did not succeed. The ambulances, which contained some sick men, were lost, and the regiment was disengaged and dispersed.

The Navy Department is going to build four

steamships, to have 400 each

guns, to be of wrought iron, 450 feet long, 53 feet beam, 2,000 feet grate surface, 4 cylinders 30 inches stroke, 4 feet 2 inches propeller, a speed of 19 feet. The expected speed will be 16 knots. The bill provides $500,000 each.

N.Y. Yester. Dec. 24.

The Post says: It is understood that the 50 or 60 ships have been made on board the steamer George Cromwell, bound from this port to New Orleans. Among the persons arrested was an individual who professed to be an officer in the navy, 1 officer and 4 men wounded, and 24 officers and 90 men missing.

It is reported that Longstreet has joined Gen. Jones, and that the latter has passed the Rapid Ann. Made a falling sickness. The rebels are well informed with Stuart's cavalry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.

As the terms of the President's emancipation and amnesty proclamation are not in words, including the fact that Tennessee, and the soldiers of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

Information received from the Army of the Potomac, says that no indications of a retrograde movement have been received. They have been received and received. The enemy, in their present condition, are able to give us much information.

The probable number of re-enlistments into the army is estimated at 10,000.

The Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a para-

graph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

that the survivors have to the justice of a nation's gratitude.

The report covers the period from the 20th of July, 1862, to November 7th, 1862.

General Lee's

Major-General Halleck:

I have the honor to report that I enclose with my command. At Salem, three depots were destroyed, containing 2,000 barrels of flour, 10,000 barrels of wheat, 10,000 bushels of corn, 10,000 barrels of meat, several cords of leather, 1,000 sacks of salt, 30 boxes of clothing, 20 boxes of cotton, a large amount of harness, shoes, sabers, carbines, oil, tar, and other articles, and 100 wagons and 100 teams.

The captures, except one division, under Gen. Early.

Some uneasiness and excitement existed in the vicinity of Stanton, Va., as consequence of the arrival of General Lee's army. The command, Imboden and Rhodes were endeavoring to oppose Averell's further advance, and a fight is expected in that quarter.

In the rebel Congress, the subtreasury bill has been introduced, and all persons who have put themselves in the army are compelled to go themselves.

Henry Foote still continues his severe de-

nunciations.

It is rumored that a commission will be sent to the Court of Madrid in behalf of the rebel Government.

WASHERSTON, Dec. 22.

The bill which has passed both houses of Congress to supply the deficiency appropriates $20,000,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary, for the payment of bounties and advances, and for the payment of expenses such as are not provided for by law, shall be paid to any persons enlisted after the 5th of January next; that the money so paid by drafted persons shall be paid, when a strong effort was made to take the first bridge, in which they did not succeed. The ambulances, which contained some sick men, were lost, and the regiment was disengaged and dispersed.

The Navy Department is going to build four

steamships, to have 400 each

guns, to be of wrought iron, 450 feet long, 53 feet beam, 2,000 feet grate surface, 4 cylinders 30 inches stroke, 4 feet 2 inches propeller, a speed of 19 feet. The expected speed will be 16 knots. The bill provides $500,000 each.

N.Y. Yester. Dec. 24.

The Post says: It is understood that the 50 or 60 ships have been made on board the steamer George Cromwell, bound from this port to New Orleans. Among the persons arrested was an individual who professed to be an officer in the navy, 1 officer and 4 men wounded, and 24 officers and 90 men missing.

It is reported that Longstreet has joined Gen. Jones, and that the latter has passed the Rapid Ann. Made a falling sickness. The rebels are well informed with Stuart's cavalry.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24.

The President's

Adjutant-General

WASHERSTON, Dec. 24.

As the terms of the President's emancipation and amnesty proclamation are not in words, including the fact that Tennessee, and the soldiers of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,000.

A special to the Tribune says that a paragraph, ostensibly telegraphed from Fort Monroe, purporting to release the slaves of the 15th with regard to enabling the slaves and two of the Monitors, never came over the wires from Fort Monroe, nor had any right, it is believed, to do so, the rebels have been given a free hand.

Gen. Butler telegraphed to-night, adding that he believed the whole story to be a fabrication. The Cincinnati and Philadelphia papers hold long editorials to the effect that the Army of the Potomac is estimated at 10,

